Automatic External Defibrillators are used by emergency first responders at incidents where casualties are suspected of having suffered a heart attack, and apply an electric shock across the heart in order to correct its rhythms. AEDs are not, however, standard equipment on all front line appliances.

Comments from Development Officer:

Clear community benefit. However, the original application was discussed informally with the Chairman on the basis that this was a "buy one, get one free" basis. The Fire Station has now resolved to buy defibrillators which match others already in service elsewhere. This being the case, the sum requested is for one item for Royston, plus an allowance (by the CDO) for delivery costs.

Amount recommended: £1,000
